February 2021 Newsletter

view this email in your browserMessage from the Co-Directors

Welcome to the Atlanta Global Studies Center's (AGSC) e-newsletter! We're excited to launch this periodic publication to highlight upcoming events hosted by our Center, recap the successes of previous events, and highlight the work and achievements of students, faculty, and partners affiliated with the AGSC.

The AGSC, established in 2018, is a partnership between Georgia Tech and Georgia State University that aims to enhance access to advanced language learning and deepen knowledge of global and intercultural issues for the benefit of Atlanta region students, faculty, and the public. We host and co-sponsor a wide range of events that engage with various partners and stakeholders as well as support research, curriculum enhancement, and student and faculty professional development in global studies and language learning. Learn more about the exciting ways we are empowering the Atlanta region's global agenda on AGSC website!

We look forward to "seeing" you at our events and partnering with you through our various initiatives!

"A Higher Education Hub Empowering the Region's Global Agenda"

FALL 2020

Semester in Review

The Atlanta Global Studies Center has been busy!
Take a look at what we've been doing this past semester.

Five Metro Atlanta Colleges and Universities Joined Forces to Launch New Global Research and Education Collaborative

AGSC houses a new global research and education initiative launched in Fall 2020. The Atlanta Global Education and Research Collaborative (AGREC) aims to connect the region's international assets through an emphasis on supporting "global at home" projects that serve students, faculty, and community partners and define the metropolitan area as a hub for global education and research. AGREC currently funds six projects led by cross-institutional faculty teams that partner with various community organizations.

Read more at the Atlanta Global Research and Education Collaborative \(AGREC\) webpage. Also, see the press release.

Youth for Change: Atlanta Celebrated International Youth Day | UN75 | Youth 2030 with the "Voices of Youth - Future We Want" Video Campaign

AGSC, in partnership with City of Atlanta Mayor's Office of International Affairs, RCE Greater Atlanta, and the United Nations Association of Atlanta, celebrated the Youth 2030 Voices of Youth Initiative, UN75, and all initiatives that provide an outlet for young leaders to mobilize and inspire action to improve their communities and realize their goals. The Future We Want Video Campaign convened students virtually from across Atlanta and Georgia to share their hopes and aspirations for a better future. As we marked the 75th anniversary of the United Nations amidst unprecedented times, it is important that we continue to recognize young people's agency, resiliency, and their positive contributions as agents of change.

on "How to become a Certified Legal Interpreter for the State of Georgia"

There is a shortage of licensed court interpreters in Georgia. Court interpreting is essential to ensuring that every Georgian has equal access to justice. To address this need, AGSC, in partnership with the Georgia

Department of Education, hosted a virtual information session in Fall 2020 that featured John Botero, Program Manager at the office of Court Professionals, Judicial Council/Administrative Office of the Courts of Georgia. Find out more information here.

AGSC helps Georgia Tech Expand Global Commitment by Launching Hebrew and Swahili Programs

In Fall 2020, students at Georgia Tech studied introductory Hebrew and Swahili for the first time.

Open to undergraduates and graduates alike, the courses are also available for students attending other colleges and universities affiliated with the Atlanta Regional Council for Higher Education (ARCHE) through the council's cross-registration program.

"Offering students a rich array of languages to study is an important part of our goal to develop leaders with a global mindset who are prepared to improve the human condition," said Georgia Tech President Ángel Cabrera. "It is also yet another way we are supporting Atlanta as an international hub and contributing to the state's economic development efforts."

"Enhancing global competence and cross-cultural understanding are core priorities of the School of Modern Languages and the AGSC. By adding Hebrew and Swahili, we are strengthening our efforts in Middle Eastern and North African Studies and applied language learning to serve all Georgia Tech students, regardless of major," said Anna Westerstahl Stenport, professor of Global

Growing International Virtual Exchange: The Case for Virtual Exchange

Last October, 125 leaders and innovators in higher education attended "Growing International Virtual Exchange: The Case for Virtual Exchange" where they heard renowned expert Jon Rubin speak about the power of virtual exchange to provide inclusive and accessible global experiences to a larger and more diverse population of students and to prepare students for careers where international collaboration and the ability to work effectively online will be necessary. Virtual exchange requires top-down investment and support from leadership. The afternoon session of the event demonstrated various models of incorporating virtual exchange on different campuses and offered practical advice for faculty. The event was organized by the University System of Georgia, the Atlanta Global Studies Center, and Clemson University. For more information on virtual exchange, click here.

AGSC Leads in Effort to Build Regional Peace Education Ecosystem

PEACE

ATLANTA PEACE INITIATIVE

AGSC is helping lead an initiative to create a metropolitan peace education initiative. The goal: create a peace studies ecosystem in Atlanta that spans schools and disciplines. The effort is part of a project of the Atlanta Peace Initiative \(API\), a non-profit group of civic and business leaders seeking to bring the World Summit of Nobel Peace Laureates to Atlanta every three years and launch the Americas office of the Secretariat of the World Summit in Atlanta. AGSC, in partnership with the API is coordinating the Atlanta Peace Education project and offered various webinars in Fall 2020. Learn more here. ### AGSC Co-led a Major SDG Initiative at Georgia Tech

Sustainable Development Goals at Georgia Tech

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

To advance Georgia Tech's new mission and strategic plan, the Institute launched a campus-wide sustainability effort to promote, implement, and advance the 17 United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). The long-term initiative included two virtual events and a collaborative online activity during the Fall 2020 semester. Read more. Learn more about the SDGs at Georgia Tech initiative

Climate Leaders Talk Solutions at the Global Climate Action Symposium

In October, Georgia Tech hosted the first-ever virtual Global Climate Action Symposium, which attracted an audience spanning 21

Georgia State partnered with the U.S. Department of State and the U.S. Department of Education, to celebrate cultural diversity #TheStateWay during International Education Week this past November. 1318 Georgia State University Students attended International Education Week events.

Global Careers Expo

Over 170 students attended the Global Careers Expo, hosted by The Atlanta Global Studies Center, Andrew Young School of Policy Studies, and The Center for Urban Language Teaching and Research. Students met with global organizations and discovered how to build skills for an international career. Notable organizations included the U.S. Department of State, Peace Corps, the Georgia Department of Economic Development, Global Atlanta and the City of Atlanta Mayor's Office of International Affairs, U.S. Department of Commerce, World Language Education Program and the Georgia Professional Standards Commission, U.S. AID, and the International Rescue Committee.

GoGlobal 360°

As a part of International Education Week, faculty from GSU's Creative Media Industries Institute, GSU's School of Public Health, GSU's Art and Design, and Clemson University's Office of Global Engagement demonstrated how virtual reality video adds new dimensions to research and teaching and immerses students in exciting different spatial realities.

FLAS Panel at World Languages Week

The Atlanta Global Studies Center was invited by CULTR (Center for Urban Language Teaching and Research) to moderate a Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) Student Panel during World Languages Week 2020, an annual event that attracts over 1000 high school and college students from around the state to showcase speakers, activities, and topics that highlight the value of language skills and cultural experiences in the global economy. View the FLAS panel discussion here.

Language Learning and Social Mobility: Evidence From Al-Hariri's Maqamat

On September 22nd, 145 students and faculty of Arabic and Middle East studies attended a virtual talk given by countries, focused on key issues in climate action. "We're in this together," President Angel Cabrera underscored during the event's opening. "The biggest challenges that we face as a species affect us all... the biggest issues are going to be global in nature". An annual collaboration between the Georgia Tech Global Change Program, the Atlanta Global Studies Center, the Center for Serve-Learn-Sustain, and 6 European consuls based in Atlanta, the Global Climate Action Symposium showcased this collaborative, international effort.

State Department Diplomacy Lab Bids Awarded to Modern Languages' David Marcus and Kyoko Masuda

Two faculty members of the School of Modern Languages, David Marcus, Lecturer of Arabic, and Kyoko Masuda, Director of Japanese Program and Associate Professor of Japanese & Linguistics, have had their Diplomacy Lab projects accepted by the State Department. The projects were in response to the State Department's call on "Language Curriculum Development for Diplomats: Specialized vocabulary, spaced repetition, and automated lexical leveling in over 60 languages". FLAS Fellow Spotlight:

Alex Syriopoulos

"I have a lot of experience doing data analytics and software development, and we see a huge trend in business to be data-driven, so there is a demand for people who have technical knowledge and expertise, but then can communicate this information to non-technical people. A master's degree in communications and foreign language could make me more attractive to businesses because I have humanities experience. That's why the FLAS fellowship is so important. This is what makes me a well-rounded engineer."

Alex is currently pursuing a Master's degree in Global Media and Cultures, with a concentration in Spanish at Georgia Tech.

Georgia State University FLAS Fellow Spotlight:

Diana Oshorun

Diana spoke with us on her experience as a FLAS fellow, "The FLAS fellowship has encouraged me to take a deeper look at the career possibilities where I can utilize my French language skills. The AGSC has exposed me to career professionals through the global events they've hosted and broadened my scope of what is possible. People usually associate learning a foreign language with teaching, but FLAS allows you to see everything you can do with language and the practical applications of language and language-learning skills."

Diana Oshorun is currently pursuing a Master's degree in French at Georgia State University. She earned her bachelor's degree from GSU in English and then moved to France to teach English in Cannes. Her interests lie in the intersection between Africana studies and French studies, in the post-colonial Francophone African diaspora. She hopes to use her academic and French expertise in career fields related to international business or public service.

Georgia Tech Faculty Spotlight: Dr. Natalie Khazaal

Meet AGSC affiliated faculty Dr. Natalie Khazaal, Assistant Professor of Arabic and Director of Middle Eastern and North African Studies Program (MENAS) at Georgia Tech's School of Modern Languages.

We talked to Dr. Khazaal about her current research and plans for the MENAS program. "My current project is exploring the recent wave of open Arab apostates/atheists and how they use traditional and social media to fight stigma and threats of violence. This wave surprised the Arab world, but, actually, it reflects a broad, post-2011 'defiance turn' in Arab communities when many minorities openly began to reject nationalist narratives centered on Islamic identity," said Dr. Khazaal.

She also shared interesting details about the MENAS program she oversees: "The MENAS program at Tech is a fascinating, new minor. Its interdisciplinary focus on the cultures, history, politics, languages, and societies of the region makes it an effective training program that prepares Tech students to help SOLVE critical technological, social, and policy challenges facing the world and MENA today like GLOBAL WARMING, REFUGEE CRISES, HUMAN DIGNITY, POVERTY, WAR. Our priority is to inform the thousands of Tech students who haven't heard of it about the exciting benefits it offers like hands-on, professional development opportunities, internships, intercultural competence and many more. We just streamlined it to be a fast, easy, we were also delighted to hear Dr. Khazaal's thoughts about AGSC's support for her work. AGSC is what we have been missing for a long time. It promotes awareness about how cultures and languages are always already connected to the most important local and global development issues. The center has given me a platform to educate the academic and local communities about the pitfalls of democracy and the impact of international players like the Arab world on US politics. The center has also brought to my attention incredibly talented Arab artists and experts on important issues such as race and sustainable development—all topics of interest to MENAS students and enthusiasts," said Dr. Khazaal.

We thank her for taking the time to speak with us and look forward to working with her for many more years to come!

Georgia State University Faculty Spotlight:

Dr. Yali Zhao

Atlanta Global Studies Center selected Dr. Yali Zhao to facilitate Georgia State University's Faculty Teaching and Learning Community on Virtual Exchange. The Spring Kick-off Event will be on January 28th, 3-5pm. Details follow.

Yali Zhao has been trained in virtual exchange and has implemented several successful virtual exchange projects over the years in her work preparing future Social Studies teachers. Now she shares her experiences and advice with other faculty in the community. As the facilitator of the community, Yali has collected and organized useful resources and made them available on the community learning page.

According to Yali, "This community aims to inspire faculty to give virtual exchange a try. It's a wonderful way to get students engaged with peers from other cultures and to learn new skills. We hope being a part of a community will re-energize faculty and give them the support they need to build virtual exchange projects now and in the future."

Atlanta Global Studies Center wishes to express its thanks to Dr. Yali Zhao for her valuable contributions and her support of virtual exchange at Georgia State University.

AGSC Partner Spotlight:

Dr. Dimeji Togunde

AGSC External Advisory Board Member
