Stage 3: Learning Activities

<table>

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>“Men fadlek, Ureed…” Your class is deciding what they should eat at next week’s Arabic Club dinner. You and your classmates will participate in a large group interview to collect “data” about food preferences for your class. You will fill out a grid with six rows and seven columns. You will write your name in Row 1, Column 1. In the blank spaces in the remaining columns in Row 1, you will write five of your favorite foods. In the last column, you will write down your favorite drink. Then you and your classmates will circulate around the class with your grids and ask five different people: 1) if they like or dislike the foods that you listed in the first row 2) to tell you which foods and drink each of them likes. Record with checkmarks the number of times classmates liked the same things you liked in Row 1. Then fill out the remainder of the grid with the things your classmates told you they like. As a class, tally up the foods and drinks that were the most popular.</td>
<td>Lazeeth/ Have students look at the restaurant add for “Berjeel Al-Arab Restaurant” Encourage them to look for familiar words and phrases as they look at the different sections of the menu: salata, mezze, halwa, and mashroubat. Ask students to answer questions such as the following: [Teacher Note: Students should answer in English so that comprehension can be assessed]. How many mezze are offered? Which drinks would you order from the menu? If you wanted to avoid meat in your diet, which “salata” would you choose from the menu? What kind of halwa do they serve at the restaurant? What is the suggestion of the day?</td>
<td>Arabic Wave Students sit in a circle or line to participate in an Arabic Wave game using vocabulary for different foods and drinks. Teacher starts the “wave” by calling out a food or drink while raising up both arms. The student sitting next to the teacher quickly calls out another food or drink while raising his or her arms. This continues around the circle until every student has named a food and raised up their arms. Play several rounds until the wave can be done in a very quick motion.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
Students play “Tic-Tac-Toe.”
Students use flashcards of food and drink. The teacher draws a nine square grid on the board and tapes a vocabulary flashcard on each of the squares. The students cannot see the pictures. Each flashcard is numbered on the back, which the students can see. The teams then take turns to guess the picture, e.g. “Raqem wahed, mà’e / (Number one, water?)” If a student guesses correctly, his/her team earns a nought or a cross. The first team to complete a line of three noughts or crosses wins the game.

*In small groups, students are given a stack of clip art pictures of several food items. The cards are placed face down in the middle of the group. Students take turns drawing individual picture cards from the stack. Students poll everyone in the group by asking/answering questions such as “Hal Tuheb or Hal tuhebben”…?, in order to elicit “Na-am Uheb… or “Ia, Ia uhebb ….” The answers to these questions will determine if the food they drew from the stack is one that: 1) all students in the group like the food, 2) nobody in the group likes the food, or 3) if some like and others dislike the food. Cards are placed in these three different category stacks, depending on how they group voted. After all the cards have been used, students will draw a Venn Diagram to display the results by writing in the food names that belong in each category.

Chicken or Beef?
What do you think famous people order when they travel to restaurants around the world? Would “Ariel Grande” prefer a chicken salad or a hamburger? Would John Travolta eat ice cream or strawberries for dessert? The teacher selects magazine pictures of famous people from popular magazine such as People magazine. As an alternative, students could bring in pictures of their favorite singers or actors. On the back of each picture, the teacher writes the name of a food. For example, John Travolta’s picture may have the word “dajaj” (chicken) written on the back of it. As the teacher holds up the famous people pictures, students guess what the person wants to order, e.g: “Hal ta-thon anna John Travolta yuhebb lahem aw dajaj? (do you think Travolta likes Beef or chicken?)” or “Hal tathon anna John Travolta yuhebb farawla?/ or you think he likes strawberries?”
The teacher says “na-am/la” to each guess. Allow a limited number of guesses or set a time limit.

Pictionary:
Learners play a drawing game on the board. The teacher divides the board into two sections with a vertical line and divides the class into two teams. One member of each team stands in front of the board facing the class. The teacher calls out an item of food or drink in Arabic e.g. “Kunafa” and the two students turn around and draw what they think it is. The first team member to draw the correct food

“Continue the sentence”
Students sit in a circle as one person starts a chain sentence by saying “Ureed/ I want…” and a food item of his/her choice. For example, he/she might say, “Ureed samak/ I want fish” for example, the next person repeats this and then adds an item. This continues round the item earns a point for his/her team group with everyone adding item. The person who ends with the very long sentence starts the next round.

- Discuss what would make a healthy plate with a friend
- Listen to ingredients and put them in order
- Create your own salad/dish desert

- Collect data about favorite fruit/vegetables through interviewing friends.
- Read about “Drinking coffee protocols” in UAE and answer questions
- Create a three meal menu

Other Learning Activities

- “Blind fold” taste game
- Flip the card and guess the word
- Timing while students are listing as many fruits and vegetables as possible.
- Guess the word…Think of a fruit or vegetable. Describe it to the students using color, shape, size, fruit or vegetable, and any other clues you can think of, for example: (برتقالي أنا) (I am orange) (طويل أنا) (I am long/tall) (خضار أنا) (I am a vegetable)
- Back to back and face to face (Expeditionary Learning Protocol)
- Think pair share
- Anchor chart/to make thinking visible
- “Give me one Get one, move on” Protocol (To share and gain knowledge)
